COVID-19 instructions for catering establishments, pubs, bars, nightclubs, and other gathering places

- COVID-19 is an infectious viral disease which spreads from person to person by means of the projection of aerosols, mainly though close contact with infectious persons.
- If the conditions are favourable, the virus can survive on contaminated surfaces for up to three days, but it can be destroyed through cleaning and disinfection.
- The risk of the spread of COVID-19 is at its highest in enclosed, crowded, and poorly ventilated rooms.
- The aim of these instructions is to provide guidelines for nightclubs, bars, pubs, lounges, and other catering establishments and gathering places for the safe provision of their services under the conditions of the spread of COVID-19.
- The work of any establishment should always be organised along the lines provided by valid orders which have been issued by the government of the republic of Estonia: it is necessary at this time to implement various measures and restrictions in order to prevent the spread of COVID-19 (as published in the State Gazette).

The cleanliness of the premises and proper ventilation

- It must be ensured that air which is mechanically supplied and removed in the form of a ventilation system is supplied through a system that is fully functional and which has been switched on. The requirements must be followed in terms of regulation No 8 by the Minister of Economic Affairs and Infrastructure, dated 2 April 2020, regarding: requirements for the ventilation and aeration of social welfare institution buildings and non-residential buildings that have indoor climate control.
- The premises must be regularly cleaned and disinfected by using the usual methods and cleaning materials.
- Frequently-used objects and surfaces (including counters) should be cleaned and disinfected every two to four hours. Such objects and surfaces include toilets, door handles, bar counters, tables, chairs, etc.
- Cover bread and other unpacked food with a kitchen towel or a transparent lid.
- Regularly clean any surfaces which are touched by customers (with an interval of at least two to four hours, and including utensil vessels, menus, condiment and sauce vessels, bread baskets, serving tongs, counters, and so on).
- Packaging and utensils which are used for selling takeaway food and drinks or for consuming them on site must be stored in a manner which helps to prevent their potential contamination.
- Any waste which may have been contaminated with the virus (eg. tissues, masks, etc) should be disposed of pursuant to the following instructions: www.envir.ee/et/uudised/koronajaatmed-tuleb-teistest-eemal-hoida
- The advice of the Health Board in terms of cleaning and disinfection should be followed.

Customers

- Businesses must ensure that the number of patrons in an entertainment establishment never exceeds 50% of the maximum capacity of the premises. Irrespective of the capacity figure, the number of people in any premises at a time may not exceed 250. Only groups of up to six people may be seated together, and any two groups must be at least two metres apart.
- Public events in indoor premises with fixed seating may be attended by up to 400 people. Other indoor public events may be attended by up to 250 people, and outdoor events by 500 people. Outside any area which has fixed seating, only up to two people may walk together and the pair must stay at least two metres away from any other individuals. This requirement is not applicable to families which find themselves in a situation in which it is not reasonably possible to observe that requirement. The requirement for a maximum number of customers is not applicable to children’s playrooms.

- Capacity and proper distances are calculated by working out the total volume of floor space in terms of square metres which is intended for customer use, and the surface area of the premises which is designed for use by customers. For this purpose, the first calculation should involve only 50% of the surface area of a premises that has been designed for public use. As customers are required to observe the ‘2+2 rule’, the remaining 50% should then be divided by four. As an example, in the case of a surface with a floor space of 100m², the maximum number of visitors is 100/2/4=12.5 people, which can be rounded up to thirteen people for each 100m² of floor space. If possible, customers should be notified in writing of the maximum permitted number of visitors, with notification to that extent being placed at the main entrance to the business.

- Any individuals who enter the building and any indoor premises which are in public use must wear masks. Masks may be removed for eating and drinking. Wearing a mask is not compulsory for children under twelve years of age, or for individuals who have a justified medical reason for not doing so, or for anyone who needs to communicate with an individual who has hearing difficulties and who must be able to read their conversation partner’s lips. Please see the Health Board’s website for guidance on how to properly wear a mask.

- Service providers must ensure that customers can only access entertainment establishments and the sales or service areas of catering establishments in the hours in which they are permitted to do so by the order that is currently applicable. Outside of those hours such establishments may only be accessible to those customers who are buying food to be taken away, plus providers of courier and transportation services and for the owner of the establishment or their representative, plus employees, rescue workers if necessary, and any individuals who are in charge of maintenance duties for the premises.

- Information material and signage must be posted within the premises of any commercial undertakings in order to facilitate social distancing.

- Information must be posted on the business website, along with its social media accounts and beside the entry to the premises, so that customers are properly notified that they are not permitted to enter the premises or to remain on the premises if they have even the slightest suspicion of having been infected, and that the business operates under the obligation to remove any such individuals from its premises.

- Any customers who enter the business premises must be identified and any customers who are under the required age limit for entering the premises must be ejected.

- Any customers who are exhibiting signs of intoxication must be removed from the premises and no alcohol may be sold to those customers.

- The business must give customers the opportunity to register their personal details (name and telephone number). It should be disclosed to customers that such details are disclosed on a voluntary basis. The details will be used later if it becomes necessary to notify the customer of any potential contact with an individual who has been infected.

- It must be ensured that anyone who is using the business premises is maintaining the required social distancing from anyone else on the premises. The required signage must be displayed to facilitate this.

- Customers should be encouraged to use the HOIA mobile phone app. For example, information about the app could be added to the menu. The app notifies individuals who have come into close contact (lasting more than fifteen minutes within a distance of two metres) with a person who has tested positive for coronavirus.

- Customers must be able to wash their hands or, if this is not possible, to sanitise their hands.

- Hand sanitisers must be provided in visible places alongside the main routes that are used by customers, including at the entry and exit points.

- Hand-washing and sanitising stations must be equipped with appropriate instructions.

- Toilets must be equipped with plenty of soap and disposable towels for drying hands. From the perspective of infection prevention, it is safer to use disposable towels instead of hand dryers.

- Buffet service and self-service should be avoided, if possible, as such services may encourage people to gather and make social distancing more difficult. If shared utensils are used for serving food, hand sanitiser must be provided and it must be ensured that people sanitise their hands before handling food, while also wearing their masks and observing social distancing rules.

- In the case of organising product presentations (such as food, utensils for serving food, or cosmetic products which are accompanied by a high risk of cross-contamination, such as lipsticks or mascara), where possible facilities must be provided to those persons who are tasked with presenting the products and to customers so that all parties are able to sanitise their hands, and all parties should be encouraged to maintain the required social distancing and wear masks.

- Information materials should be posted in a visible place for customers so that they can easily be reminded of the following points:
  - the need to stay at home if they are ill or if they exhibit even mild symptoms (including a mild case of head cold, sore throat, itchy throat, a cough, and so on);
  - the need to follow the rules regarding hand hygiene;
  - the need to maintain the required social distancing from others;
  - the requirement that drinking vessels and crockery which have been designed for individual use should not be shared with others.

- As of 24 November 2020, COVID-19, officially referred to as SARS-CoV-2 (severe acute respiratory syndrome coronavirus 2) is included in hazard group 3 of biological hazards. In the case of all work which is accompanied by a risk of coming into contact with biological hazards, the employer must determine the type, extent, and duration of the risk to the employee of their becoming infected during the course of carrying out the working environment risk analysis and, based on this, should assess any risk to the employee’s health, implementing any necessary precautionary measures. The precautions are introduced on the Labour Inspectorate’s ‘Tööelu’ website.

- It is compulsory to wear a mask or cover one’s nose and mouth in public indoor spaces, in the service areas of service providers, and on any other premises which are in public use. Wearing a mask is not compulsory for children under twelve years of age, for individuals who have a justified medical reason for not doing so, or for anyone who needs to communicate with an individual who has hearing difficulties and who must be able to read their conversation partner’s lips. Please see the Health Board’s website for guidance on how to properly wear a mask.

- The employer must make sure that all employees are aware of the main measures which can be implemented to prevent the passing-on of respiratory diseases. The employer must make sure that all employees are aware of the general principles of food hygiene and that they observe all personal hygiene rules.

- It must be stressed to employees that they are not permitted to come into work or to remain at work in the case of there being even the smallest suspicion of their having been infected. A procedure must be established in order to make sure that no employee who has fallen ill remains on the business premises.

- Close contact between employees and close contact between employees and customers must be minimised.* If this is not possible, provide employees with personal protective equipment such as visors and masks.

- Employees should be advised to use the HOIA app. The app notifies individuals who have come into close contact (lasting at least fifteen minutes within a distance of two metres) with a person who has tested positive for coronavirus.

- Employees must be able to wash their hands regularly and the employer must remind employees when they should wash their hands and how often they should do it (see the list at the end of the instructions for more detail). Hand-washing instructions must be followed.

- If it is not possible to wash one’s hands, then hands must be sanitised with a hand antiseptic by following the respective instructions. Visibly dirty hands must always be washed.

- A collective means of protection and personal protective equipment must be issued to employees based on the results of the risk analysis for the working environment, and training must be organised to show the proper and safe use of such equipment. Instructions can be found on the Health Board’s website.

- Work clothing must be washed regularly using a procedure which is followed by all of the business employees. The clothing of any employee who has fallen ill must be washed immediately.
• Clothing or other tools and equipment which are used at work should not be taken home if possible.

When an employee falls ill with a viral upper respiratory tract disease (fever, cough, lack of energy, and other symptoms)

• An employee who falls ill outside of working hours must stay at home.
• An employee who falls ill at work must leave immediately.
• The employee must contact their family physician who will determine whether or not that person should be diagnosed with COVID-19, plus their need to be tested, and the need for signing a certificate to show their temporary incapacity for work.
• The employee must notify the employer of their confirmed COVID-19 diagnosis. The employer must be notified in a manner which has been agreed between the employee and the employer.
• Having been notified of an employee’s COVID-19 diagnosis, the employer must cooperate with the regional department of the Health Board to identify the employee’s work-related close contacts and to provide them with instructions for the further organisation of their work.*
• Any premises which may have been contaminated with the virus must be closed to third parties and should be thoroughly cleaned, disinfected, and ventilated before reopening.
• The advice of the Health Board in terms of cleaning and disinfection should be followed.
• Close contacts must self-isolate for a period of ten days, while monitoring their health condition carefully. Even though being tested is not compulsory, the Health Board advises close contacts to undergo SARS-CoV-2 testing after completing their ten-day self-isolation period in order to detect potential asymptomatic cases.
• The requirement to self-isolate at one’s place of residence or permanent place of lodgings for ten calendar days and to take the coronavirus SARS-CoV2 test is not applied in the following cases:
  1) if the individual has already had COVID-19 and has been declared by a physician to have recovered within the past six months;
  2) if the individual has been vaccinated against COVID-19 and no more than two months have passed since the completion of the vaccination process.
• Remaining employees may continue to carry out their daily duties, but should also keep an eye on their health.
• If the COVID-19 diagnosis is not confirmed for an employee who has fallen ill, all other employees may continue to carry out their duties, but must monitor their health over the following ten days.
